I don't agree with this. Many rural residents are on bore water NOT town water. They had to provide their own water at their own cost. The fracking will only do damage to the underground water system ie the artesian well water that people rely on greatly in our dry continent. We only have small rivers & water is ESSENTIAL to all life. It is far more important than oil or gas. I really think the priority is for healthy life & that means healthy WATER. The focus on energy sources needs to shift to RENEWABLE energy NOT combustible fuels. The oil should be used for other production of articles made from oil & STOP using it for running round on racetracks & highways in high powered motor vehicles. Better transport systems & power to homes & business needs to advance technology to renewable sources. Government has enough money to do this. Tell them to stop making excuses & take the responsibility they are supposed to be using & do the right thing. Water is life. Priority is the sanctity of life. Not mining. The future for the children of this world depends on life of the planet which is all about the protection of the environment. Using the resources RESPECTFULLY & carefully. Water is the FIRST resource we should be looking after.
