Limestone gravelly where laterite has developed.

Massive surface cracking clays of flood hills or undulating country, often featured rock.

and loam soils featured as gently

of locating a suitable site.

by locating deeper basement areas.

Geophysical information may be used to optimise aquifer submergence suitable.

Surface water developments are feasible where the base rock is rippable and Economic viability may be marginal and should be examined.

crop irrigation quantities.